ABSTRACT

The current issue of the International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF) Library Bulletin combines an acquisitions list with that of special bibliographies. The broad classes follow the IPPF general organization by topics: (1) general reference, (2) IPPF, (3) family planning and maternal and child health and care, (4) bio-medical study and research on human reproduction and contraceptive agents, (5) social sciences related to family planning, (6) education and training, (7) information and communication, (8) international organizations and conferences, and (9) countries. The name of the publisher/supplier and British currency price of the book, when known, are supplied for each notation together with a short annotation of the content and/or coverage. An author index with item numbers for cross-referencing and lists of publishers/suppliers and their addresses are appended. (MA)

IPPF LIBRARY BULLETIN

The present issue of the Library Bulletin marks a tentative effort of our service to combine the production of an acquisitions list with that of special bibliographies. To this effect, broad subject classes are presented in loose-leaf form so as to allow for their classification in files or folders according to the needs of the users.

It is hoped that subject retrieval will be greatly facilitated by this presentation. Please address your comments on this matter to us so as to help us decide whether or not to go on with this new layout of the IPPF Library Bulletin.

N.B. Due to increases in both printing and postage costs we are obliged to streamline our distribution of the Library Bulletin. From the next issue only family planning and population organizations will receive a copy automatically. Others wishing to continue receiving one copy of the Library Bulletin should complete and return the enclosed card immediately.

Please note that due to budgetary reasons the AUGUST ISSUE OF THE LIBRARY BULLETIN was not published.

IPPF SURVEY OF WORLD NEEDS IN FAMILY PLANNING

The survey provides students in the population field with a uniquely comprehensive array of demographic and other data on a world scale.

Detailed population statistics including calculations of population growth rates, mean age at marriage and numbers of women at risk are listed for 209 geographical entities, together with socio-economic indicators, estimates of birth control practice and family planning programme figures.

Dr. J. C. McDonald, Professor of Epidemiology at McGill University, Montreal, discusses the findings for the world as a whole and at regional level. Drawing upon four background papers, he demonstrates relationships between birth rates, estimates of birth control practice and socio-economic indicators of development. A regional analysis of age-specific fertility rates clearly illustrates differences in family-building behaviour between high and low fertility groups. Ethical and practical issues in the deployment of resources, the role of governments and factors in the choice of contraceptive method are also reviewed.

Sources of data and their reliability are clearly stated. UN Demographic Yearbooks 1960-70 were supplemented by then-unplublished data from UN agencies and US Bureau of the Census. Family planning statistics were obtained by a world-wide survey among IPPF regions and member associations. Data on international funds was extracted from published reports and correspondence with governments.

The timing of the Survey was favourable, since it followed the publication of many ten-year national censuses and was based on the most recent population estimates. The statistical appendix is therefore particularly valuable for the fact that its demographic sources are likely to be the best available during this decade for most countries of the world.
